'59 Rumours of Elvis' death untrue!

Just over fifty years ago rumours flew round the world of Elvis' having been killed in a car crash while returning to home from a trip to Frankfurt. Elvis' father Vernon and Elvis' secretary had been spotted being taken into a German hospital having survived a major car crash - but there was no sign of Elvis! This sparked world-wide rumours. Elvis however was not in the car at all. Here is the news report from the time, March 28, 1959.

Elvis' Father Hurt in Wreck:

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany (UPI) : Elvis Presley's father and secretary were slightly injured in an automobile accident which totally wrecked their car. A spokesman for the 3d Armd Div, with which the soldier-singer is stationed near here, said Vernon Presley and the singer's secretary, Elisabeth Stefaniak, suffered bruises in the accident, which occurred Thursday night on the Frankfurt-Kassel autobahn, about five miles south of the spa where the Presleys live.

Elvis was still en route home from his Army duties at Friedberg when the accident occurred.

Presley Driving

The accident took place when the elder Presley was driving the Pfc's secretary home from a shopping tour in Frankfurt.

Miss Stefaniak is an adopted daughter Army Sfc Raymond L. McCormick.

Presley attempted to pass another car, driven by a German, when that car, in turn, pulled out in an attempt to pass a truck. When Presley hit the brakes, his car went out of control, rolled over several times and ended up in the other lane of the highway. The occupants were taken to a nearby German hospital, treated for bruises and discharged. (26 March 1959)

The following day Elvis was very much alive as he celebrated the halfway mark in the army with an 'Over The Hump' party. (News, Source;EIN)
